LONG RETREAT ENDED

London Believes Russians Are Prepared to Strike Back—Hindenburg Still Unable to Cross Dvina.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Sept. 9.—For the first time in many weeks, the Russian account of the Galician campaign, have indicated a severe defeat on their opponents. The battle of Tuesday near Jaropol, seventy miles east of Lemberg, and near the Galician frontier, was not conclusive, as regarded the Russian position, but it was a step in the direction of a more definite Russian advance. The German account of the battle, however, is not so favorable. It states that the Russian forces, engaged in the battle, included not only Austrians, but German forces. HALL BOY IS HELD AS ONE OF SLAYERS OF NEW YORK WIDOW

Youth is Alleged to Have Confessed to Complicity in Crime of Robbing and Killing Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Sept. 9.—Orney Talas, a Russian Finn, for two and one-half months a hall boy in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, the aged widow who was slain last night, at the hands of masked men, who robbed her of gems valued at $10,000, was arrested today after he had confessed, the police assert, to having played a part in the crime. He was formally charged with murder. All other servants in the house were freed of suspicion, Deputy Police Commissioner Lord announced.

Preliminary examination of Mrs. Nichols' body revealed the probability she died of fright and not strangulation, as at first supposed. An autopsy will be held today to disclose the exact cause of her death.

Although the burglars stripped their victim's fingers and ears of diamonds and other jewels worth $10,000, they failed to rifle the strong box of her safe, in which she kept gems valued at $200,000 to $500,000.

Talas, in that the police claim was his confederate in the robbery, said that for some time several men had been endeavoring to get him to "stand in with them" to rob Mrs. Nichols, but that he had refused to do so.

He is further alleged to have told the police that it was not his level, his employer wrote on her person that were to be taken.

The police version of the confession quotes Talas as saying that the men arrived at the Nichols home at nine o'clock last night by appointment and in response to a double ring at the basement door he admitted them. He said that it was not his level, his employer wrote on her person that were to be taken.

New York, Sept. 9.—Hall boy, the police deny in New York, who was arrested today trying to find who murdered Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, a wealthy widow, and robbed her house of $10,000 in jewels, was strangled to death about nine o'clock last night at her home on East 75th street, just off Fifth avenue.

The murderer took diamond rings from the woman's fingers and her valuable jewels from her ears. It was reported they carried away a strong box containing jewels worth several hundred thousand dollars.

AYLWARD-HUSTING DIFFERENCES MAY CAUSE PARTY SPLIT

Differences of Opinion on Judgeship Appointment May Divide Progressive Democrats.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Sept. 9.—Whether the differences between John A. Aylward and United States Senator Paul C. Hastings over the federal judgeship appointment will extend so far as to disrupt the progressive wing of the democratic party, is a question that has caused much discussion here recently.

Aylward's friends are persistent in demanding that he be appointed to the position and the backers of Senator Hastings are equally persistent in advocating Judge Martin Lueck's appointment.

It is now little possibility for an appointment before the meeting of congress in December. State Strong for Wilson.

That it ever was declared John A. Aylward while discussing the political situation today. Mr. Aylward says that he has received many letters from men who never supported President Wilson who are for him as the result of his war policy.

So far two men have been prominently mentioned as possible candidates for the judgeship. One is Governor T. J. Cunningham of Chippewa Falls, secretary of state during the administration of Governor Peck and until recently chairman of the state civil service commission.

The other man who has been mentioned is William Wolfe of La Crosse, a member of the state board of normal regents. Wolfe has been prominently identified with the progressive faction of the democratic party.

Kearney for Senator. The only man who has been mentioned as a possible democratic candidate for United States senator is Thomas Kearney, who was defeated for the nomination two years ago by Senator Hastings. The democrats here are as vigorous as the ultra-Liberal men in discussing the matter.

Some of the leaders claim that the democratic party will make the campaign for lower taxes next time and that the name of John C. Karel of Milwaukee as a possible candidate for office seems to have been entirely forgotten.

Davies at Madison. Bronzed by a ten days' outing in the northern Wisconsin woods, Joseph P. Davies, chairman of the federal trade commission, returned to Madison yesterday afternoon for a brief stay before returning to his Washington duties. He declined to talk on the political situation, state or national.

"You know I am not in politics now," he said, "and it would hardly be in keeping for me to say anything."

The resignation of State Tax Commissioner T. S. Adams, Mr. Davies spoke with regret.

"I regard Mr. Adams' withdrawal as a distinct loss," he stated, "and I am sure that the state will be the better for his services."

"He is a fine type of citizen and public servant. Few know the subject of taxation better than he. I am sorry he is going to leave Wisconsin."

EX-PRESIDENT TAFT SPEAKS ON PROGRESS

DECLARES THAT ALL RADICAL REFORMS ADOPTED HAVE PROVEN FAILURES.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Sept. 9.—Former President William H. Taft today told the American Bankers Association, in convention here, that practically all of the radical reforms adopted since the war have proved failures. He said that the reforms had failed of their purpose, causing the nation to halt in its progress, and that there now be a "reverting to the line of moderation and justice."

In giving an economic and political summary of the generation just closing, Mr. Taft said that the latest outstanding feature appeared to be the widespread growth of the spirit of the brotherhood of man, despite the fact that the war has shattered the dreams of universal peace.

BRITISH TRANSPORT IS REPORTED SUNK IN TURKISH WATERS

Berlin Gives Out Information That Southland Has Been Torpedoed.—Allies Plan New Attack.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, Sept. 9.—The Overseas News Agency today quotes the Weserzeitung of Bremen as saying that the British steamer Southland serving as transport, was torpedoed recently in Turkish waters. The news agency says:

"The Southland formerly was the Red Star liner Vaterland. These steamers were the origin of the sinking of the ship, which was captured by the German navy and then sailed under the American flag. Now the Southland, which lately was flying the American flag, was captured and is being used as a transport."

No previous report has been made concerning the torpedoing of the Southland. A wireless dispatch from Berlin last week quoted a telegram from Sofia to the effect that a British transport had been sunk by a German submarine in the Aegean Sea on August 14 by a German submarine. The British government has made no announcement of the sinking of another transport.

FAIRIES SEEKING REVENGE UP HERE

Beloit Fairbanks-Morse Team Will Fight It Out Sunday Here—Laferty vs. Fucik.

Sunday, the twelfth, the Beloit Fairbanks-Morse team will invade Janesville for the one purpose of obtaining revenge for the double trubbings the Janesville Cardinals gave them at Beloit Sunday and Monday. Since these two disasters, the Fairies have been planning and devising means by which the tables can be turned until Janesville may expect several radical changes in the Beloit line-up. Sam Laferty will be in the mound, from recent indications, and Fucik, by the way he pitched against the Cardinals for six innings last Sunday, the Cardinals will not knock down any hopes from clouding the ball. One thing that will be demanded by the fans here, that that grease ball be prohibited for the rule 14, section 5, has the following to say about discolored or damaged balls: "The use of a ball being intentionally discolored by rubbing it with the soil or otherwise by any player, or otherwise damaged by any player, the umpire shall forthwith demand the return of that ball and substitute it for another legal ball." Since that rule has been passed, the national commission has also put into force a more stringent rule, prohibiting the use of any foreign substance or liquid on the baseball by the pitcher or any other player. This rule went into effect last June, but the so-called emery ball was revealed, in fact the rule was so strictly that one major league pitcher was fined for putting emery on the ball to secure an uneven curve. The line-up of the Cardinals will be about the same as was in the Beloit series and will be announced on Friday or Saturday.

SOX DEFEAT TIGERS IN FINAL STRUGGLE

Schalk Singles in Ninth, Winning Uphill Game—Cubs Lose to Cardinals—Brooklyn Drops to Third Place.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] Chicago, Sept. 8.—Yesterday the Chicago White Sox tamed the Detroit Tigers, tying a couple of knots in his belt and nipping off his claws, when they took the last game of the Detroit schedule by the score of 10 to 9. Whenever the Sox and Tigers hook up it is sure to be a slug-fest, and Wednesday's game was no exception to the rule. Ray Schalk's single in the ninth won the game for the Sox after Cobb at bat had trounced the Sox badly up to the ninth.

It was an uphill fight all the way for the Chicago club. In the first two rounds the Tigers mauled Faber for four runs in each inning, but the Rowlands kept pegging away until a rally in the seventh put them on even terms with the Tigers. Benj. Reifel, Faber of the unpleasant job of stopping the Junglers in the second and he failed. Mel Wolfgang was sent to the slab and had the Tigers thoroughly tamed until the eighth. When the Tigers added on, Cobb played in the limelight for the losers. Cavalek, Boland, Dubuc and Lauderback were used by Jennings in a vain attempt to stop the Sox.

Red Sox Divide Bill. Boston, Mass., Sept. 8.—The league-leading Red Sox divided a doubleheader with Philadelphia Wednesday. The scores were 9 to 0 in favor of the Sox in the first game, and 2 to 0 in the second game, with the Sox winning the first game by a score of 9 to 0.

Cubs Are Shut Out. St. Louis, Sept. 8.—Two passes given by Jim Lavender, paved the way for the Cubs to receive a lacing from the Cardinals, for the Cubs were shut out by the count of 2 to 0.

After the bad start in the first two innings, Lavender was all-right. Ames, the veteran, mastered the Cubs, allowing six scattered hits.

Brooklyn Drops Down. Brooklyn dropped into third place and the Braves went a notch higher toward the Phillies. Boston won the first game easy, hammering Rube Marquard and Appleton hard and winning 12 to 1. Nehr, pitching for the Braves, became ill from the heat in the fifth, and was replaced by Jimmie Foxx. Boston took the second game by the score of 4 to 1. Rucker lasted for Brooklyn until the eighth, when he weakened when the Braves scored three. Barnes made his first start for Boston and held the Robins to five hits.

Fred Clark to Quit. Pittsburgh, Sept. 8.—Fred Clarke, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, announced Wednesday that he had tendered his resignation, to be effective on the 10th. Clarke is independent of the Pirates, having been manager of the Pirates since 1900 and has won a number of National League pennants with them, and in 1909 took the series from Detroit and lost to Boston in 1903.

"I am tired of baseball," explained Clarke, "and am going to live on my farm in Kansas. Clarke is independent of the Pirates, having been manager of the Pirates since 1900 and has won a number of National League pennants with them, and in 1909 took the series from Detroit and lost to Boston in 1903.

The Boston Nationals last year's world's champions, swung into second place on Wednesday by the narrow margin of one point over Brooklyn as the result of their double defeat of the Superbas, while Philadelphia, although winning a game from New York, dropped a few points of its lead over the Braves.

While it has been proven that the present combination of players under Manager Griffith is not strong enough to land at the top in an American league race, it is nevertheless one of the hardest teams in the league to strengthen, for the reason that every position is filled in a manner good enough not to give a large percentage of the material which can be brought up from the small leagues a chance to take the place of present incumbents. It would require youngsters of great ability to take the places of any of the members of the present team, and strengthen it. Only a very small percentage of the experiments which are brought up for trial each year make good. Two or three are thrown into the two major leagues every year or so, and it frequently happens that not a single player of ability is added to any of the teams.

MORRIS MILLER

Scout Neall of the Phils was in a small minor league town training his lamps on a player who had been recommended to the club. The work of the player impressed Neall, and he decided to have a talk with him that night. Shielding his identity, he started a conversation with the player at his hotel. During the talk the bushier had occasion to pull out his keyring. Besides keys the scout saw a corsicrow and beer opener attached. Neall ended the conversation quickly and left the town that night without buying the player.

This country is busy making wooden arms and legs for the European war—so say nothing of the wooden heads it makes for the base ball war.

Neal Ball, once with the Indians and Red Sox, broke a base runner's jaw with a thrown ball during a game between the Bloomington (Ill.) and Cedar Rapids (Ia.) teams, seven or eight years ago. Ball was playing second base. The other team had runners on first and third. A zipping grounder was hit toward him, and the man on third raced for home, while the man on first—O'Connor by name—scouted for second. Ball made a dazzling stop of the grounder and threw toward home. O'Connor ran right into the ball. It caught him flush on the jaw and broke the bone in three places.

Claude Berry, catcher for the Pittsburgh Feds, tells this one: "One day while I was catching for the Dallas (Tex.) team, a runner first started to steal second, pegged toward the base, but our pitcher—Walker—had moved out of the box after he delivered the ball, and walked into the throw to the ball hit Walker on top of the head, and as Walker dropped to the ground the ball bounded high in the air. The runner had reached second base at the time, and was seeing the ball in play raced for third. But out shortstop saw the ball, caught it as it came down and whipped it to third in time to put the runner out. The official scorer credited three men with an assist. He gave me an assist because I had made the original throw, he gave one to the pitcher because he had dead had deflected the ball to the shortstop, and of course, he gave one to the shortstop for making the throw to third."

After basking in the baseball limelight for a quarter of a century the Delephantys have passed from the major leagues. There were five of them, and they were all from Cleveland, and they trained on the sand lots at Cleveland. One of them found his way to fame in the baseball world. Ed was the first to get into a company. He met a tragic death by falling from a bridge. Tome came second, then followed Joe, who was with St. Louis for a number of years. Jim was the fourth to shine in the big leagues. He jumped to the Federals last year, and was recently released to the minors. Frank was the fifth member of the Delephantys. He played with Cleveland and later with the New York Americans.

Norman S. Taber, the great miler, will not be seen in competition again this season. The word that traveled to this city from Providence, R. I., yesterday. The Rhodes scholar is now said to be stale, and the opinion prevailing among the crack trainers is that it will take him a few months to come around to his old form. Taber had an eye on the half-mile record and talked of having a special try at Catterberg, but his present condition will necessitate his retirement. When he ran and was beaten in the mile at Frisco, Taber was overdone. His chest was drawn and his eyes sunken and he moved like a selling player, and it was a pitiable sight to see him trail home in 4:22 behind Jole Ray.

Connie Mack broke up his team because it was too good and McGraw is breaking up his because it is too rotten. These managers sure have queer ideas of doing things.

FACTS VS. FICTION.

No one boasts of the fact that the McGovern administration of state affairs was on an economical basis. In fact it is pointed out that the "Tax Eaters" had control of the legislature and that the costly experimental form of government which was brought about by the tax payers, continued during his regime. Just why he should rush into print on every occasion now, seeking to bolster up his own regime and also saying a nice word for La Follette and La Follette's ideas is not hard to guess if you look behind the political curtain and see the "tax eaters" preparing their arms for a further onslaught on the state treasury and the tax payer's pockets at the next state election.

Phillip proved too much of a general for them and saved a few brands from the burning although they managed to get away with a lot of legislation that should have been killed. However, L. C. Whitte, answers the latest attack made by the former governor on the Phillip administration when he points out that in answer to charges that the present administration has spent more money than did that of McGovern, Speaker Lawrence Whitte of the assembly, who has made a close study of state finances, and is now at work on a method of systematically compiling all departmental statements, on Saturday issued the following reply:

"The statement of former Gov. Francis B. McGovern in Milwaukee papers of Sept. 3, relative to state finances, cannot be passed by unnoticed.

"When Mr. McGovern signed the appropriation bills as passed by the legislature, he demonstrated that questions of finance had not been included in the requirements for his bachelor's degree. His article in question demonstrates that time has not improved his ability to furnish questions of this character.

"A plain statement of facts is as follows:

Appropriation made by the legislature of 1913 $20,743,498
Appropriations made by the legislature of 1915 $2,752,245
"On the appropriations of the Phillip administration are approximately $4,000,000 less than the McGovern.

"The McGovern administration of 1913 inherited in the shape of overhanging appropriations $1,919,184, making a total obligation on the part of the state for the biennium of 1913-14 of $22,662,682.

"The Phillip administration inherited from Mr. McGovern $3,681,952, or the total outstanding obligation of the Phillip administration is $20,420,184 for the biennium 1915-16. This obligation, notwithstanding the $3,500,000 inherited from Mr. McGovern, is over $2,000,000 less than the outstanding obligation for the previous biennium.

"The statement of Mr. McGovern that by the so-called gentlemen's agreement whereby he entered into an understanding with various departments, he had saved $2,500,000, is ridiculous.

"By this agreement he succeeded in eliminating this sum from the tax roll when he was in the public eye, but he passed it on as an inheritance to the present governor, and it is accounted for in the above total showing the obligations which the state has to meet for 1915-16. He did not save a single dollar to the taxpayer by this arrangement, who, after all, is the individual vitally affected. The day of collecting the obligations imposed was simply deferred until a more favorable time which now happens to be the present administration.

"The cash balance in the state treasury at the present time is but evidence of the fact that departments have entered into the spirit of economy instilled by Mr. Phillip and instituted when he started his campaign over a year ago. Mr. McGovern justly says that appropriations are not expenditures and the Phillip administration intends to keep a check on all expenditures in the end that appropriations will be far in excess of necessity."

THE STATE FAIR.

Next week comes the State Fair in Milwaukee, the usual gathering of politicians from all over the state and the customary booms for this or that office all exploited and later plucked like balloons. However, all politics aside the present state fair gives promise of being a first class pumpkin show in every respect and worth attending. In the first place it is a Wisconsin show from top to bottom, and in the second it has good attractions in every line of display already entered. Autoists will find the latest in motor cars to inspect. Horsemen will delight in the speed program and as for free entertainments there never has been such a list. This is not press agent "dope" but real genuine conviction after talking with them behind the 1915 Wisconsin State Fair.

THE WALSH REPORT.

Generally speaking the Walsh report has not been given due consideration but the Wall Street Journal touches upon it when it says that:

"Based upon the Walsh investigation, recommendations will presumably be made to Congress for labor legislation. The Commission on Industrial Relations, if it had its way, would have Congress create by law instant a new code of living for the sole benefit of labor; furthermore, the Walsh report would have Congress give labor by edict that which only the extreme leaders of labor have claimed as its due.

Reformers have existed since the world began and should continue to the end of time. But it is always to be hoped that they will stick to reforming some specific evil condition, and not acquire the Walsh habit of trying to reform everything in sight. We can all favor reformers on the general principle that it is through their failures as well as their success, that the world has progressed until it is a fairly comfortable place of abode.

"The late William Graham Sumner, sometime professor of sociology at Yale University coined 'mores' that he might sum up in one word our heritage from the ages; namely the present beliefs, traditions, religions, laws, morals, habits, customs, and manners of living of the peoples of the world. He held that the 'mores' are the result of evolution. They were not 'created'; they grew.

"It is a conspiracy that, logically speaking, is right, wrong—or itself. It is the adoption or rejection by the majority of an act or a condition after years of experience by the majority which makes that act or condition a right or a wrong. Finally, when that act or condition has fixed itself as a subconscious part in the ethics of the majority, it becomes incorporated into our civil, moral, or social laws as a right or a wrong.

"Since Moses descended from the Mountain with the tables of stone to find the people worshipping the Golden Calf the Ten Commandments have all been violated; not by all the people, but by some of the people, all the time. Yet these great Christian laws have stood the acid test of ages and even now represent the essence of the moral and civil laws of all enlightened peoples.

"There is something peculiarly repulsive, something abhorrently profane and almost blasphemous in the assumption that after most cursory and biased investigation, a Commission could collect and digest the wealth of traditions of our forefathers of right and wrong; and further, that any Commission is capable of crystallizing for Congress to enact into laws that which would, in the opinion of a majority of the people of these United States, include all that was good in our life and discard all that was bad.

"On the books are many laws which have never been enforced because they do not carry the sanction of the people.

"The Walsh report cannot carry the sanction of the people. Does it even carry the sanction of a majority of people?"

MR. ADAMS RESIGNS.

Mr. Adams has resigned from the state tax commission. He returns to the realm of teaching and the tax payers can breathe easier in the hopes that the days of theorism are at an end in this important branch of the state government. Professor Adams is a brilliant man. He is a brainy man. He is a great teacher and Cornell is to be congratulated upon securing his services. However, as a practical businessman he has not proved such a success. He advised his assessors to "Go out and get the money" and they did and the tax payers suffered and the "Tax Eaters" rejoiced. The opportunity is now open for Governor Phillip to name as his successor a practical business man and not a theorist. We have had enough of theory in running our state government, what we need now is good horse sense.

It is a sign of wealth that Mrs. John Jacob Astor, upon burning a chop, she was grilling over a bon fire, burned it and threw it over a fifteen hundred foot cliff. The chop to grill was enough to denote wealth but having a cliff had is another. However, he it said she cooked other and did not burn it and enjoyed eating it.

This talk about cutting out the shut-offs while driving cars through the city streets is only a joke on the part of the police department. Cutting corners is also a farce when no prosecution follows. Indignation either revokes the orders or prosecute the offenders, no matter who they be.

Next in line is John Bull for a nice friendly little talk with Uncle Sam about the freedom of the seas and then all will be well for Jenn Jacques will follow John Bull's lead without a murmur.

Chicago school teachers are going to make a fight to retain their union organizations and have called on Gompers to aid them in their battle against the Chicago board of education.

Just now the lives of great men all remind us not to talk too much, particularly upon religion, politics and war when in mixed company at least.

Even if Admiral Von Tirpitz has been thrown overboard, it is safe to say the old salt can swim enough to reach one of his submarines at least.

No use talking about outrages in foreign country's until we stop the habit of having lynching bees right here at home.

Almost everything wanted are found advertised in Gazette want ads. Read them and see.

ELECTRIC COMPANY FLOATS BOND ISSUE OF MILLION DOLLARS

Money Derived From Issue to Be Expended to Clear Indebtedness and for Contemplated Expansion.

A million dollar bond issue, authorized several months ago by the Wisconsin railroad commission, is being undertaken by the Janesville Electric Company. A portion of the flotation will be used to clear up present indebtedness, with the remainder held in reserve for further extensions, contemplated for some time past. John C. Rexford and W. S. Jeffris hold the trust deed.

At the present time bonds for $300,000 will be issued. One hundred and thousand dollars of this will be deposited in the First National Bank against a former issue of the same amount. The second $130,000 of the present issue will be disposed of to clear up indebtedness.

Recent acquisitions of the company include the store building at the corner of Milwaukee and River streets here, the power house and electrical equipment at Indian Ford and the Milton Junction power line. These additions the installation two years ago of the expensive steam turbine at the upper power house, near the fourth avenue bridge, bring the aggregate indebtedness to a considerable sum but which the sale of the present bonds will offset.

The issue was made of large proportions with a view to the future finances. Individual members of the Janesville concern practically control the Electric Company, and the present contemplations are to acquire this and merge it with the local company.

The new bonds will be of $500 each, bearing 5 per cent interest, and they will run for a period of thirty years, until 1945.

A sinking fund provision has been included in the bonds, which provides that a certain number of the bonds each year, beginning in 1916, this redemption of the bonds will be made for the protection of the bondholders. Mr. Rexford and Mr. Jeffris, holding the trust deed, are therefore the trustees for the bondholders also. Interest periods are provided on January first and July first annually.

The trust deed recorded this week in the county register of deeds covers forty-eight large tracts of property. The Register of Deeds P. S. Smiley's assistants already had thoughts of transferring it to the county records, and the new stamps to the amount of one hundred and fifty dollars were required to file the deed.

The new bonds are at present in the hands of the printers in St. Louis, who have done the greater share of the city of Janesville's business.

MARY PICKFORD IN ROLE OF AN INDIAN

Famous Film Idol Demonstrates no Characterization Impossible.

While many in the large audience at the Apollo last night did not think the role of "Little Pal" suited Mary Pickford, there is no doubt that she portrayed this unique characterization perfectly.

In the role of the little half-breed girl who announces happiness, opportunity and love to the Indian man she loves, Mary Pickford is superb. Although the nature of this characterization is entirely new to the actress, she suggests the sentimentality made with such force and naturalness as to be utterly astonishing in her effectiveness.

"Little Pal" is an original story without the star and it provides her with abundant opportunity demonstration of the qualities for which she is universally famous.

SNEAK THIEF WORKS WHILE WOMEN SLEEP

Enters Residence of Mrs. Mary Irwin, South Jackson Street, and Finds Boarder's Purse.

Early this morning a thief or thieves broke into the residence of Mrs. Mary Irwin, 303 South Jackson street, and obtained about four hundred dollars in currency belonging to Miss Rose Morrissey, a boarder at the residence. Nothing else was missed from the home this morning, but the thief made the attempt of a novice to search the place and overlooked the purse of Mrs. Irwin, which was hanging in her bedroom.

Entrance was gained to the house through a cellar door which was not locked, but strong enough to withstand force. The purse of Miss Morrissey was left in one of the rooms upstairs and the thief made the attempt of a novice to search the place and overlooked the purse of Mrs. Irwin, which was hanging in her bedroom.

Those who reported for practice last night were: Captain Mooney, Lee, Richards, Cronin, Kaukaske, Spohn, Marshall, McCulloch, Brown, Amperoff, Hogan, Day, Welch, Falter, Lowry, Morse, Lamb, Waite, Allen, Taylor, Murphy, Ford, Cullen, McLaughlin and Williams. THE PAINMETER

Some instrument like a thermometer that can be put in one's mouth and measure the amount of pain one is suffering is an invention much desired by a friend of mine.

He is a normally healthy person who has just passed through his first growth-up illness. The amount of pain he suffered was one of the important symptoms, and the doctor and nurse were continually asking him how much pain he had.

"Confound it," he would say, after trying to analyze and measure and weigh his pain, "I don't know exactly how much. I don't know whether you'd call it a pain or a discomfort today. I wish there were some way you could find out for yourself same as you find out my temperature. You wouldn't want to depend for that on asking me how I felt, would you, and I can't tell you about the pain any more accurately."

No One Can Know What Another Suffers

It is a strange and interesting thought that no person can possibly know anything about the pain another suffers.

Perhaps we all have different measures of pain. Perhaps what your neighbor calls a terrible headache you would consider a mere passing discomfort not worth mentioning. Or, contrawise, perhaps what he calls a slight pain you will call the doctor for.

How Do We Know What He Has to Bear?

Sometimes we see that this person or that one has a great deal of pain. How do we know? How do we know what he has to bear? We say someone makes a terrible fuss over a little pain. How do we know that it is a little pain?

Another's pain, no matter how deeply we sympathize with it, is always a ghostly unreality compared to the flesh and blood reality of our own pain.

The incommunicability of pain is something I have often marvelled over. Someone you love is suffering intensely; you sit close beside him; you hold his hand in yours; but the pain is as far away from you as if you were on the other side of the sun. Of course that is natural and inevitable, yet some times doesn't it seem marvellous to you that two can be so close in heart and body and one suffer so intensely and the other be perfectly immune from that pain?

It is simply part of the eternal isolation of mind and soul, to which, in spite of all our love and our intimacies, we are forever separated.

Cocoanut Custard Pie—Beat four eggs until light, add gradually one cup sugar, two tablespoons flour, moistened with milk, one pint milk, one pint cocoanut, mix thoroughly, add one teaspoon vanilla; bake in pie pans lined with paste.
Apple Meringue Pie—Stew and sweeten juicy apples when you have pared and sliced them; mash smooth and season with nutmeg or stew some lemon peel with them and remove when cold. Fill your pans and bake till done. Spread over the apples a thick meringue made by whipping to a stiff froth the whites of three eggs for each pie, sweetening with a tablespoon of powdered sugar. Bake each egg-flavor this with rose of vanilla; beat until it will stand alone.

Iodine the Ideal Antiseptic.

Peroxide, bichloride of mercury, carbolic acid, boric acid, listerine, and various other popular antiseptic agents have their drawbacks. Either they are poisonous in themselves, or they are too weakly antiseptic in practical use, or they irritate or injure the tender young tissue cells and so delay healing.

Iodine has come to be the standard disinfectant for the skin and fresh wounds. While iodine does not absolutely sterilize the uninfected skin—that is, it does not destroy all the bacteria present on or in the skin—it still it nearly accomplishes that purpose. In practice it is found to be the most desirable disinfectant for the skin.

The nature of iodine, official in the United States Pharmacopoeia, is rather too strong; it should be reduced with alcohol, one part tincture to two parts alcohol. The British Pharmacopoeia tincture is weaker and suitable for use without diluting.

Before operation the standard preparation of the skin and fresh wounds. The skin being not washed for twelve hours before the iodine is applied. Water causes skin cells to swell and obstruct small spaces between glands of the skin where germs may lurk beyond the penetration of the iodine.

Every family medicine cupboard should have a glass-stoppered amber bottle of tincture of iodine, diluted with alcohol as above suggested. It should be resorted to as a dependable antiseptic for every wound, no matter how trivial. (2) Not a wound may be. Just be sure that the iodine reaches every nook and corner of the wound. Then do nothing more but protect with a sterile bandage. If a mere cut or scratch, paint it with flexible collodion.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed To Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have met a boy a good many times, but he has not asked for a date yet. He always talks to me and cuts up when I am alone. How can I tell him I like him, but he has never had a very good chance to ask me. Please tell me how to win this boy's love, as I believe I could.

(2) How should I act when I want a boy to take me home and he acts as if he is going to ask for a date?

(3) Do you think a boy thinks a girl too sporty if she whistles at him?

(4) Should a girl talk to a strange boy at a place of amusement.

(5) Should a boy call for a date when he brings a girl home once?

(6) Isn't it the girl's duty to tell the boy she has enjoyed herself when he brings her home, instead of the boy's?

DOORIE BROWN EYES.

(1) The boy will ask for a date if he wants one. You can't make him.

(2) Don't start around him or show that you expect him to take you home. Be indifferent.

(3) Yes.

(4) A girl should not talk to strange boys.

(5) Not unless he wants to. For courtesy, the girl should ask him to come some time.

(6) She should thank him for bringing her home, but she should not thank him for the good time she has had unless he took her.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young man twenty-four and wish to marry a young lady of my own age. As you have given so much good advice, I would like you to tell me how I can help me out with the following questions:

(1) What is a good engagement ring? (Please name two or three.)

(2) Which is the most frequently used?

(3) Should the gentleman ask the girl's father for her hand in marriage before giving her the ring?

(4) How should he ask him?

(5) What should he say after the father gives his consent?

THANK YOU.

(1 and 2) Any ring except a wedding ring. He should just tell him what late the conversation.

(3) He should thank him.

(4) In reply to The Constant Reader who has been unhappy for twelve years:

Your case should be reported to the probate court. In this way your troubles could easily be adjusted and your husband be made to support you and your children. As for your training to be a nurse, a trained nurse has to be a high school graduate and then ordinarily has to have four years' special training, two years in a training school and two in a hospital. You are not too old to enter a training school.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young lady and would like to ask your advice. My skin is very tender and and cover the pie three-fourths of an inch thick. Bake in oven until meringue is well set. Should it color too darkly, sift powdered sugar over it when cold; eat cold. Peaches are even more delicious when used in the same manner.

Butterscotch Pie—One cup butter, two cups dark brown sugar, four eggs, four tablespoons flour, seven-eighths cup granulated sugar, one cup milk, few grains salt, one-half teaspoon lemon extract, flaky pastry. Melt sugar, add butter and flour blended together, then the milk. Cook three minutes, remove from heat, add egg yolks slightly beaten and the salt; strain if necessary and cool. Fill individual shells of flaky pastry, baked over inverted tins. Cover with meringue made from the egg whites and granulated sugar. Beat whites until stiff, gradually add two-thirds of the sugar, and continue beating till the mixture will hold its shape. Fold in the balance of sugar and flavoring with lemon juice. Brown in slow oven. One teaspoon of acid jelly may be spread over the pie before the meringue is added.

NEW SCHOOL BOARD TO NAME SECRETARY

J. B. Borden of Milton Among Those Prominently Mentioned for the Office.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Sept. 9.—The selection of a secretary of the state board of education engages the most interest at the first meeting of the new board next Saturday. Favorable comment is heard in board circles on the broad qualifications of George E. Frasier, a graduate in law and accountancy at the University of Wisconsin, who married a daughter of President E. J. James of the University of Illinois, and who resigned from the faculty of that institution in order not to embarrass his father-in-law in the latter's official functions. The secretaryship of the central board of education is concerned largely with the business end of the state educational institutions, particularly as it relates to finances. It is understood that Mr. Frasier is not in the field as a candidate, but that his peculiar training for such a position has so commended him for consideration that his name may be presented.

J. B. Borden, Milton, assistant state superintendent of public instruction; Francis S. Lamb, Madison, accountant.

Anemia—Is a person very anemic when the blood test is eighty? Would that condition cause weak spells? Is anemia caused by lack of iron? Would catch of the bowels cause it?

Answer—In health the hemoglobin percentage is from ninety to one hundred. Eighty per cent. hemoglobin is a moderate anemia. (2) Not of itself alone. (3) Usually anemia is an effect. Find the cause and don't rely upon mere blood tonics. (4) Catarrh of the bowels is a vague digestive trouble might cause anemia.

Ear Drums, Factory Style.

Are ear drums injurious in any way? I mean the kind sold for those who have perforated drums from inflammation. Do they help deafness?

Answer—Dangerous experiment. Better leave it to a competent ear specialist who has examined you. If a light plug of cotton in the ear canal improves hearing, an artificial drum might do the same.

Miss W. R. explodes thusly: I've had a beautiful case of acne for two years, and I am just sick of having the old groups squawking what is the matter with your face? Please send me all the help you can in the inclosed self-addressed envelope.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Oh, Dick, you smell so fishy."

"Fishy," snapped the young man. "Naturally. I just finished cleaning the fish."

"Well, couldn't you wash your hands?" suggested Nell hesitatingly.

"Well, I like that," Her husband looked reproachfully at her. "I nearly broke my poor old blistered back stooping over the river to scrub up, and now you ask if I couldn't wash my hands."

"Well, what is it, then?" The whole tent smelled like a fish market; it made a sickening me.

Dick ground his teeth. "People with such fishy noses have no business in camp. Look at Olive; she's gone. She helped clean the fish; you bet she's not fishing over the smell."

Oppressive silence reigned in Nell's quarters of the camp. Dick wriggled out of his shirt, filling the air with greenish steam.

"I wish you'd do something on my burned shoulders," I believe they are blistered."

"Shut up!" asked Nell in chilly tones.

"I guess so; they feel as if they had been scalded. I've had sunburn before, but nothing like this."

Household Hints

SCISSORS AND THIMBLE.

A handy way to carry scissors and thimble in a workbag is to take a cork that fits into the thimble. With lustre silk crochet a cap, single crochet and take up two threads of previous row and widen as necessary until large enough to pull well over the cork at the large end, leaving a small space there for the ends of the scissors to be stuck in. Thus the scissors are well protected and the thimble over the small end is easily found.

WEDDING PRESENT.

If funds are low and a wedding present is a necessity make the bride a "memory" book—or books—covering stiff backed blank books with index silk. Inside have the titles index cards, business addresses, Christmas lists, garden lists, invitations, new dishes, etc.

A companion book can be made and filled with "own" tried recipes from friends.

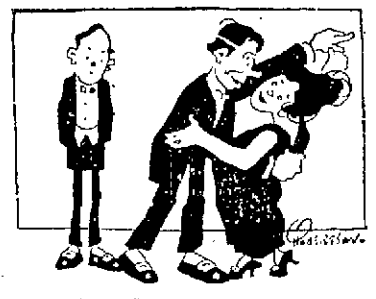

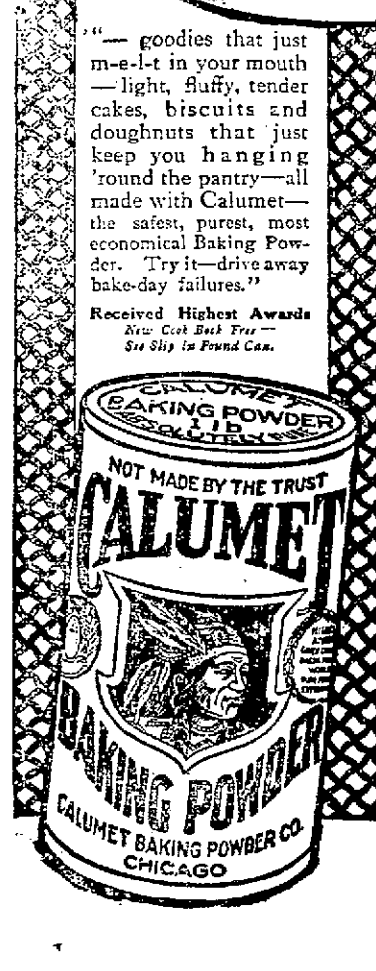

UNIVERSAL PICKLE.

Six quarts vinegar, one pound salt, one-fourth pound ginger, one ounce mace, mustard and celery seed. To blanch whole allspice, cloves and stick cinnamon. Several pieces horse radish, some nasturtium seeds and a bunch dill. Couple green or red peppers sliced and some small onions. Now add from time to time such vegetables as you like. Pickles, boiled carrots, beans, celery, onions or use just pickles alone. Mix them each time you add new ones. This keeps indefinitely.

SOME PIES.

Lemon Custard Pie—One quart milk, four eggs, separate whites and yolks, two lemons (juice and grated rind), one small lump butter, one large cup sugar, two heaping tablespoons cornstarch. Boil all until thick and well cooked. Save whites of three eggs for meringue. Line two pie pans with pastry, prick with fork and bake in oven until done. Then add filling, cover with meringue and return to the oven to brown.

Mock Lemon Pie—One cup sugar, one heaping tablespoon flour, yolks of two eggs (save whites for top of the pie), one teaspoon extract of lemon, two-thirds cup boiling water, one-half cup of stewed pliant. Mix sugar, flour, eggs and extract together; then pour on the water, then the pliant. Bake with one crust. When done, beat the whites to a stiff froth and spread over the pie, setting it back in the oven for

A child's mind and spirit will be sweeter and more sympathetic for a knowledge of music. It is as natural for a child to sing as it is for the child to talk. Given the knowledge of music's rhythm the child will easily slip into dancing, one of the best arts for giving grace and poise of carriage.

Southampton Water was an ornamental lake dotted with fairy lamps. It was a midsummer night, lagging a whole season behind its fellows. But already it was so late that the English passengers on the Kaiser Fritz had abandoned all thought of catching the last train to London.

They tramped the deck in their noisy, shining, shore-going boots; they manned the rail in lazy inarticulate next nearest thing to seeing the crime perpetrated in a vision.

"You Aren't a Detective, by Chance, Are You?" Cried Cazalet.

"Crime!" cried Cazalet. "What crime?"

"Murder, sir!" said Hilton Toye. "Willful, brutal, bloody murder! Here's the paper; better read it for yourself. I'm glad he wasn't a friend of yours, or mine either, but it's a bad end even for your worst enemy."

The paper fluttered in Cazalet's clutch as it had done in Toye's, but that was as natural as his puzzled frown over the cryptic allusions of a journal that had dealt fully with the ascertainable facts in previous issues. Some few emerged between the lines. Henry Craven had received his fatal injuries on the Wednesday of the previous week. The thing had happened in his library, at or about half past seven in the evening; but how a crime, which was apparently a profound mystery, had been timed to within a minute of its commission did not appear among the latest particulars. No arrest had been made. No clue was mentioned; beyond the statement that the police were still searching for a definite instrument with which it was evidently assumed that the deed had been committed. There was in fact a close description of an unusual weapon, a special constable's very special truncheon. It had hung as a cherished trophy on the library wall, from which it was missing, while the very imprint of a silver shield, mounted on the thick end of the weapon, was stated to have been discovered on the scalp of the fractured skull. But that was a little bit of special reporting, typical of the enterprising sheet that Toye had procured. The inquest, merely opened on the Monday, had been adjourned to the day of issue.

"We must get hold of an evening paper," said Cazalet. "Fancy his own famous truncheon! He had it mounted and inscribed himself, so that it shouldn't be forgotten how he'd fought for law and order at Trafalgar Square! That was the man all over!"

His voice and manner achieved the excessive indifference which the English type holds due from itself after any excess of feeling. Toye also was himself again, his alert mind working keenly yet darkly in his acute eyes.

"I wonder if it was a murder?" he speculated. "I bet it wasn't a deliberate murder."

"What else could it have been?" "Kind of manslaughter. Deliberate murderers don't trust to chance weapons hanging on their victims' walls."

"You forget," said Cazalet, "that he was robbed as well."

"Do they claim that?" said Hilton Toye. "I guess I skipped some. Where does it say anything about his being robbed?"

"Here!" Cazalet had scanned the paper eagerly; his finger drummed upon the place. "The police," he read out, in some sort of triumph, "have now been furnished with a full description of the missing watch and trinkets and the other articles believed to have been taken from the pockets of the deceased. What's that but robbery?"

"You're dead right," said Toye. "I missed that somehow. Yet who in thunder tracks a man down to rob and murder him in his own home? But when you've brained a man, because you couldn't keep your hands off him, you might deliberately do all the rest to make it seem like the work of thieves."

Hilton Toye looked a judge of deliberation as he measured his irrefutable words. He looked something more. Cazalet could not tear his blue eyes from the penetrating pair that met them with a somber twinkle, an enlightened gusto, quite uncomfortably suggestive at such a moment.

"You aren't a detective, by any chance, are you?" cried Cazalet, with clumsy humor.

"No, sir! But I've often thought I wouldn't mind being one," said Toye chuckling. "I rather figure I might do something at it. If things don't go my way in your old country, and they put up a big enough reward, why, here's a man I knew and a place I know, and I might have a mind to try my hand."

They went ashore together, and to the same hotel at Southampton for the night. Midnight found the chance pair with their legs under the same heavy Victorian mahogany, devouring cold beef, ham and pickles as phlegmatic ally as commercial travelers who had never been off the island in their lives. Yet surely Cazalet was less depressed than he had been before landing; the old English ale in a pewter tankard even elicited a few of those anecdotes and quaint comparisons in which his conversation was at its best. It was at its worst on general questions, or on concrete topics not introduced by himself; and into this category, perhaps not unnaturally, fell such further particulars of the Thames Valley mystery as were to be found in an evening paper at the inn. They included a fragmentary report of the adjourned inquest, and the actual offer of such a reward, by the dead man's firm, for the apprehension of his murderer, as made Toye's eyes glisten in his sagacious head.

But Cazalet, though he had skimmed the many-headed column before sitting down to supper, fairly declined to discuss the tragedy his first night ashore.

CHAPTER III.

In the Train.

Discussion was inevitable on the way up to town next morning. The two strange friends, planted opposite each other in the first-class smoker, traveled inland simultaneously engrossed in a copious report of the previous day's proceedings at the coroner's court.

The medical evidence was valuable only as tracing the fatal blow to some such weapon as the missing truncheon; the butler's evidence explained that the dinner-hour was seven thirty; that, not five minutes before, he had seen his master come down-stairs and enter the library, where, at seven fifty-five, on going to ask if he had heard the going, he had obtained no answer, but found the door locked on the inside; that he had then hastened round by the garden, and in through the French window, to discover the deceased gentleman lying in his blood.

The head gardener, who lived in the lodge, had sworn to having seen a bare-headed man rush past his windows and out of the gates about the same hour, as he knew by the sounding of the gong up at the house; they often heard it at the lodge, in warm weather, when the windows were open, and the gardener swore that he himself had heard it on this occasion.

The footman appeared to have been less positive as to the time of a telephone call he had answered, thought it was between four and five, but remembered the conversation very well. The gentleman had asked whether Mr. Craven was at home, had been told that he was out motoring, asked when he would be back, told he couldn't say but before dinner some time, and what name should be given, whereupon the gentleman had rung off without answering. The footman thought he was a gentleman, from the way he spoke. But apparently the police had not yet succeeded in tracing the call.

"Is it a difficult thing to do?" asked Cazalet, touching on this last point early in the discussion, which even he showed no wish to avoid this morning. He had dropped his paper, to find that Toye had already dropped his, and was gazing at the flying English fields with thoughtful puckers about his somber eyes.

"If you ask me," he replied, "I should like to know what wasn't difficult connected with the telephone system in this country! Why, you don't have a system, and that's all there is to it. But it's not at that end they put the salt on their man."

"Which end will it be, then?" "The river end. That hat, or cap. Do you see what the gardener says about the man who ran out bare-headed? If he went and left his hat or his cap behind him, that should be good enough in the long run. It's the very worst thing you can leave. Ever hear of Franz Muller?"

Cazalet had not heard of that important notoriety, nor did his ignorance appear to trouble him at all, but it was becoming more and more clear that Toye took an almost unhealthy interest in the theory and practice of violent crime.

"Franz Muller," he continued, "left his hat behind him, only that and nothing more, but it brought him to the gallows even though he got over to the other side first. He made the mistake of taking a slow steamer, and that's just about the one mistake they never did make at Scotland Yard. Give them a nice, long, plain-sailing stern-chase and they get there by bedtime—wireless or no wireless!"

But Cazalet was in no mind to discuss other crimes, old or new; and he closed the digression by asserting somewhat roundly that neither hat nor cap had been left behind in the only case that interested him.

"Don't be too sure," said Toye. "Even Scotland Yard doesn't show all its hand at once, in the first inquiry that comes along. They don't give out any description of the man that ran away, but you bet it's being circulated around every police office in the United Kingdom."

"That depends," quickly rejoined little Willie. "Was the person a man or a woman?"

"What in the world does that mean?" asked the traveler through a sparsely settled region on the Cape. "There's no such place on my road map."

The man whom he addressed first took a leisurely survey of the traveler and his horse, and then turned his eyes toward the weather beaten sign, which bore the single word, "Tolpomp."

TRIP TO YOSEMITE VIVIDLY DESCRIBED BY BERTHA PROCTOR

Former Janesville Girl Tells of Beautiful Wonders in Picturesque Valley.

Miss Bertha D. Proctor, formerly of this city, has written an interesting and detailed account of the famed Yosemite Valley. The letter is dated from Camp Curry, California. It is as follows:

A trip to the Yosemite, Oh silent town I left behind And silent the restless sea. But far beyond, in the mists of dawn The mountains look down on me. The Yosemite is not easy to write about—some things are too beautiful for the touch of a word. Starting from Merced, the Yosemite R. R. follows the Merced River Canyon for seventy-eight miles, passing by the forty-nine banks, old gold claims of Bret Harte's poems' fame, and the ever changing beauties of hill, valley and stream to El Portal, the Gateway to the Valley.

The rustic station is nestled down between forest covered hills and a swiftly flowing river. A shiny trail leads to the hotel where we took the stage for the valley. Across the valley, Chinquapin Falls gleams as a ray of sunlight, leaving the river far below. The way winds close to the rushing Merced. Mighty rocks guard the entrance to this Hall of Wonders. I shall never forget the never changing first impression of this wonderful bit of God's handiwork. I clasped my hands; I seemed to dream; I marveled and questioned. Can all this valley and even wonders beaped on wonders as we journeyed on.

To our right was Bridal Veil Falls, slipping over a rock of granite to 1,000 feet below where it sends forth its sprays and rainbows. Just behind this are Cathedral Rocks, towering far above and directly opposite rises El Capitan, the largest rock in the world. Nearby are the Ribbon Falls, its sprays and rainbows, just behind this are Cathedral Rocks, towering far above and directly opposite rises El Capitan, the largest rock in the world.

A trip to the valley by moonlight must not be omitted for it lingers ever in my mind. Every near and distant dome was touched with fairy silver, every canyon veiled in gauze, the lifted and the moorland dunes. From the meadows bordered by the wild azalea came twinkling stars of campfires; until then we thought of the sole monarchs of a universal world.

Too soon we must hear the departing "farewell" of the "Sentinel" of the Yosemite. We left Camp Curry for the Big Trees, a trip of forty-five miles of ceaseless climbing over precipices to heights above on the opposite side of the description of the ever-changing vistas of snow capped peaks and falls would be but a repetition of words gone before, but the eye's picture is far different. The Sequoia or Big Trees grow at an elevation of 8,000 feet; they are the oldest living things in the world, some being supposed to be 4,000 years old. Their bark is a thick brown forty inches thick, their height 300 feet and thirty-five feet in diameter. There was a wilderness of wild flowers, ferns, Indian paint brush, snow plant, Mariposa lily (spirit blossoms of the moon), hillsides hedged with purple and white lilacs, dogwood, horse chestnut, and the sweet scented azaleas; purple lupines with their silver foliage had spread a carpet of purple and silver over the mountain sides for the frolics of the birds and gay colored butterflies.

We arrived at El Portal at 7 p. m. and as the shades of evening closed the portals behind us, these scenes became memories. Memories, yet out of their happy sweetness shall come, perhaps, in hour of care, a lullaby for a day's worry, courage for a night's loneliness and strength for a soul's loneliness.

BANQUET TO CLOSE CHURCH CONVENTION

Delegates to State Meeting of Christian Church Will Dine at Grand Hotel This Evening.

The banquet at the Grand Hotel this evening will close one of the best attended and most successful conventions of the Christian church which has ever been enjoyed. There will be several notable addresses given after the banquet.

Many more delegates to the state convention of the Christian church arrived yesterday. Among the visitors from out of the state are: Robt. M. Hopkins of Cincinnati, John H. Booth of Kansas City, Mo., and Prof. Sherman Kirk of Des Moines, Ia.

The morning session opened with a praise service, led by Mr. Stevens of Sugar Grove. Then followed brief reports from the World's C. E. conference, recently held at Chicago. The general convention of the Christian church held at Los Angeles, Calif., and the church efficiency congress which was held in Hammond, Ind., last week.

Miss Jane Brewer of Milwaukee gave a very interesting address on "The Latest Power of the Church," which received much commendation. She told of the vacation school, conducted by the churches of Milwaukee. The Boy Scout movement and the Camp Fire Girls and how these agencies can be used by the church in doing good.

Then followed the report of the State Superintendent of Christian Endeavor, an address by Big Missionary work. Robt. M. Hopkins of Wisconsin, C. E. Union which gave the convention a vision of the possibilities in the development of Christian work among the people.

The afternoon session was given over to the Sunday school interests. J. H. Bullock of Green Bay gave an address on "Some Things Which Bible Schools Need." and Robt. M. Hopkins of Cincinnati, spoke on "Sunday School Attendance" and Prof. Sherman Kirk of Des Moines, Iowa, on "The Church School." These addresses were all of high order and very inspiring. All were made to feel the vital relationship between church service and Bible school.

The evening session was especially fine. The song service was led by D. E. Olson, "The Tall Swede" of Minneapolis, who is here in the interest of the international Christian Missionary work. Robt. M. Hopkins and John H. Booth, both occupied the platform again. Mr. Hopkins, who has just returned from a trip to Alaska, in the interest of the American Christian Missionary society, gave a lecture on Alaska and its open doors. Mr. Booth preached a sermon on "Personal Evangelism." These were soul inspiring messages from men who know the mission fields and the needs of men.

Today's program will be as follows: Thursday Afternoon, September 9, 1:45—2:00 Take Time To Be Holy. W. H. Trout, Milwaukee. 2:00—2:30 Our Benevolent Work. J. H. School Children Can't Afford Handicaps

In a remarkable test, recently made under the supervision of the State Board of Health of Minnesota, over 9000 school children were questioned as to what they ate for breakfast.

A large percentage of the breakfasts consisted of coffee, bread and butter; coffee and oatmeal or some other cereal; coffee and hotcakes; coffee and biscuits; coffee and coffee cake, or coffee alone. Probably the same conditions prevail everywhere throughout the country.

"IS IT ANY WONDER," SAYS THE EXAMINING PHYSICIAN, "THAT 23 PER CENT OF THESE CHILDREN HAVE FREQUENT HEADACHES."

He was thinking of the chief cause—coffee. And it IS no wonder when we consider that coffee contains the powerful drug, caffeine, a nerve poison and notorious cause of headaches, heart trouble, sleeplessness, irritation, and other ills!

Parents often wonder why their children are sickly, dull and backward in school, when frequently the cause lies in the homely, accepted habit of giving them a beverage containing an insidious poison.

When scientists and Boards of Health everywhere are speaking out against the dietetic dangers to which children have been so long subjected, it is high time that parents take heed and correct these conditions. No child should be permitted to use coffee. It is easy to furnish them instead the pleasant, pure food-drink—

Instant Postum

Made from wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses, Postum contains the goodness of the grain and is a most delicious beverage, economical, convenient and free from coffee drugs or any other harmful substance.

POSTUM comes in two forms: The original POSTUM CEREAL, which has to be boiled; INSTANT POSTUM—soluble—made in the cup with hot water—instantly. They are equally delicious, and the cost per cup is about the same for both kinds.

Valli Valli—An English girl who has been on the stage since she was five years of age. She has worked her way to the top from pantomime up through a series of appearances in melodrama, musical comedy, revues and light opera. Miss Valli's stage career began in London and was confined to England until a company was organized in that country. She then came to America and appeared in "Veronique." After the run of that piece in New York, she returned to her home and for a season deserted the musical stage for the legitimate, becoming a leading woman for Lewis Waller at the Lyric. The following year found her under contract to Charles Frohman as a member of the company to be taken to New York for "The Dollar Princess." Her success in that musical comedy was pronounced, and she remained on the field to be featured in "The Purple Road." Last season she originated and played the title part of "The Queen of the Movies."

Glenn Hall—A popular English tenor. He first gained prominence on the concert stage of England and then went to New York, where for years he was a member of the Metropolitan Grand Opera company. Listening to the call of the light musical field, he joined Ann Swinburn to create a role in "The Shepherd of the United States and Canada in a concert tour with Geraldine Farrer.

Edward Martindel—An American singer who has few rivals as a basso. He was originally member of a church choir in Hamilton, O. His first appearance on the stage was in support of Lulu Glaser in "Dolly Varden." Engagements in "The She-Gun," "The Man of the Hour," "Mexicana," "The Gay Musician" followed. For two years he was featured in "The Alaskan." Then he was in support of Fritz Scheff in "The Love Wager," and later with Trini in "Naughty Marietta" and "The Hatter." He was one of the leading parts in "The Purple Road," and more recently was in the cast of "The Pretty Mrs. Smith" with Kitty Gordon. He does not discuss "Ninety in the Shade."

Will Phillips—An eccentric comedian, discovered as the drummer in "The Country Club." His next engagement was with "The Top of the World," and afterward he went to the Folies Bergere, London in "The Wind of the Town."

The worst storm of the season, accompanied by wind and hail, passed through this section last evening. The tobacco crop suffered severely. The storm seemed to go general. At Cambridge, Rockdale and Ulica the tobacco was practically ruined by the hail. At the farm of Jas. Wileman just north of town a large silo was blown down and other buildings in the vicinity of the town were reported as being damaged. The telephone company and electric light company suffered quite extensively. One of the electric company's large wires coming to town was down at the cemetery. This wire carries 6,800 volts and there was quite an electrical display, caused from the grounded wire. There were also two primary wires down on Washington street, caused from a tree blowing over them. At midnight the electric current was shut off from the entire city and the entire light company's force worked the balance of the night to put the line in repair.
